Improve Street
Supervisor Burton W. Chace today urged motorists to use caution while driving through 220th Street, from Figueroa Street to Moneta Avenue, in the Torrance Dominguez area.

Improvement of the area is now under way and consists of extending the pavement to join curb and gutter already constructed by adjoining property owners. The project will increase traffic capacity on the street and improve drainage conditions in the area, Chace said.

Ryan Firebees to Be Used in Naval Air Weapons Meet

Firebee KDA-4 jet targets, produced by the Ryan Aeronautical Company, have been selected as the only free-flying jet targets to be used at Operation "Top Gun," Weapons Meet, November 30 to December 4, it was announced today. This will mark the first use of jet targets at a Navy Weapons Meet.

Forty-four of the production Firebees built at the Torrance plant of Ryan have been undergoing modification to meet the special requirements of the competition, which will bring together the sharpest-shooting fighter interceptor teams of the Navy's air forces.

Operation "Top Gun" will be held at the Marine Corps Auxiliary Air Station at Yuma, Arizona, but firing of Sidewinders from Navy fighter planes against the Firebees will be performed in gunnery ranges over the ocean off the San Diego coast. Utility Squadron Three at Brown Field, Otay Mesa, San Diego County, first Navy unit to receive the KDA-type Firebees, will operate the speedy, high-flying targets by remote control.

Modification of the KDA-4's at Torrance includes painting the airframes with fluorescent "Day-glo" paint to increase daytime visibility; and installation of radar tracking beacons and heat-emitting flares.

The Sidewinder, a 9 1/2-foot air-to-air missile, is built by Philco and has a General Electric infrared guidance system which detects and homes on heat radiation from the target. It has an air-to-air range of 18,000 feet and a speed capability of Mach 2.5.

Ryan Q-2A Firebees will be the sole targets in the World-Wide Weapons Meet of the Air Force's Air Defense Command at Tyndall Air Force Base, Florida, October 14-23. Thus, the Ryan targets, providing the most realistic evaluation of America's air defense capabilities, will hold double star billing this year in major weapons competitions of both the Air Force and the Navy.

Class Learning Dramatized in School Assembly

Some of the things that Crenshaw Elementary School students learned in summer school were dramatized last week in an all-school assembly, with each class presenting part of the program.

Mrs. Kathleen Strong's kindergarten presented "The Three Bears," while Miss Dorothy Aycock's and Miss Julia Holden's first graders presented folk songs and dances. Mexican dances were given by Mrs. Joan Keltus' second and third graders.

Fourth and fifth graders in Mrs. Meurel O'Dell's class led a community sing, with Randy Heinback accompanying on the accordion. Mrs. Ursula Wallace's fifth and sixth graders held a quiz program on sports and literature. Ed Giacomelli's sixth, seventh, and eighth graders led a "Junk Box Jury." Mrs. Sharco Hersh's class presented a parade of flags and patriotic songs.
